June 15 .- As far as international flavor goes the men's singles of the lawn tennis tournament for the metropolitan championship is now tasteless, for as a result of to-day's the farmers. matches at the courts of the West Side Tennis Club here all of the foreign players are eliminated. Hans Minkus, the HARVARD CREW ROWS German player, was put out of the running in the second round by Henry S Mellick, who defeated him in straight sets at 6-1, 6-1; Count Otto Salm-Hoogstraeten of Vienna could not stand the onslaught of F. W. Watrous in the first round and went out in consecutive sets at 6-4, 6-3; George Aranyl, the French racquet wielder, put up a fair fight against Louis Graves of Haworth, N. J., but he tasted defeat in two sets too, at 7-5, 6-2; and Count Alex Salm, the only remaining hope of Europe, was vanquished by F. T. Frelinghuysen at 6-3, 7-5. With the foreign e'ement out of the running the spectators began to turn their attention to the home talent, for all of the stars were out in action and all came through with flying colors.

Watson M. Washburn of Harvard, the present holder of the metropolitan title, also had a close call in his third round match against W. Halsey Wood. This match also went to three sets and the champion won at 6—4, 4—6, 6—1. Wood gained an early lead over Washburn in the early games of the first set and should have won it but for the fact that toward the end he developed a streak of wildness. Wood steadied down in the second set and won quite handily, but by this time Washburn had struck his stride was at his best in the third set, e Wood had weakened.

Washburn's victory puts him in the fourth round and brings him against Her-bert Hahn, one of the young Leland Stan-ford players, who moved out by defeating C. A. Sparks in the second round at 6—0, 6—2, and F. T. Frelinghuysen in the third round at 8—6, 6—1. The Californian will meet the title holder in the fourth round Dionne's great stead-iness gave the young Westener a little trouble in the opening set, but in the second set Murray moved around the court faster and hit the ball harder, with the result that Dionne could not handle it and won only one game. Four Mile Test for Crimson Is Unexpected-Yale Eights Try Racing Starts.

New London, June 15 .- Harvard's varsity crew had what is probably its last four mile practice row over the course this evening, starting shortly after 7 o'clock. All long distance trials over the course were supposed to have ended on Saturday, and the pull up the river this evening was somewhat of a surprise. The wind held strong while the trial was in progress, and the air was chilly. Capt. Reynolds said upon returning to quarters that the trial was only a paddle and the time was 23 minutes 40 seconds The stroke was not faster than 26 until near the finish, when it was run up to 36. Yale's varsity eights practised racing starts this evening, Coach Nickalls using the pistol for the first time since the squad arrived here.

Coach Giannini had the freshman eight paddle down to the two mile flag and then row to the railroad bridge so that the crew could familiarize themselves with the course. The eight boarded a launch after their four mile pull and were taken back to quarters.

Without It-In Dry Dock. Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN.

GOSFORT, England, June 15.—The cup challenger Shamrock IV. was tried again to-day against the 23 metre yacht Shamrock on Southampton water. The two sailed fifteen miles and the challenger again showed her remarkable ability turning to windward. She, however, did not do so well off the wind. The wind was moderate from the northeast. In one reach of four miles the challenger gained 3 minutes 8 seconds. On a broad reach, with the wind almost aft, she could gain only 5 seconds. It took the challenger 1 hour 48 minutes to sail the fifteen miles and she beat the trial boat 9 minutes 4 seconds. The challenger still seemed to be too stiff and she is to be put in the dry dock to-morrow for the purpose of lightening her. It is said that the centreboard will dispensed with, as she sails on the wind without using it.

POUGHKEEPSIE CREWS GET LITTLE PRACTISE

Wind Keeps Eights Off Water Until Sundown-Washington Coach Talks.

POUGHKEEPSIE, June 15 .- The lurking notion held by rowing experts that the Washington eight is a poor crew in rough water was dispelled when Coach Connibear sent his men out for a six mile row at 7 o'clock this evening. It was his intention to send the Pacific coast champions over the course, but a black cloud that threatened rain altered his plans. He gave them a time trial, however, from the two and one-half mile mark to the finish of the course. The conditions were unfavorable, but they rowed the distance in 13 minutes 49 seconds with a low stroke of 28. As they rowed along the west shore the distance was nearer two and three-quarter than two and one-half miles. The first half mile was rowed in 2 minutes 7 seconds.

No crew left its boathouse in the morn-ng. There was a wind blowing directly up-stream that made the river extremely choppy and up to 5 o'clock it looked as if no coach was going to trust his charges on

There was talk in some of the camps about the proposed but unlikely change of the regatta to another body of water in the next few years. Courtney has re-ceived several letters from men who are interested in rowing in the middle West. It was learned by THE SUN correspondent that the Mississippi River has been brought that the Mississippi River has been brought forward as a good place to hold the races. Coach Connibear taiked freely when asked about the matter. He said that in his opinion it would be a great boom to rowing in the West if a course in that section were selected.

PREPARE YACHTS FOR RENEWAL OF RACING

Undergoing Changes, but Resolute and Defiance Are Being Altered.

DEFIANCE IS BIG PROBLEM

Her Ability Still a Matter of Conjecture-Four Races Next Week.

When the three cup yachts meet in their next series of races a number of changes will be apparent. The Deffance will be the only one with a single headrig and she also will be without a bowsprit. The head stay will set up on the stem head and all trouble like that she had last week will be eliminated. The Resolute will have a double headrig and more sail than in her first races and the Vanitle, which will be practically as she was last week, will allow the Resolute only 1 minute 40 seconds. She will allow a little more to the Defiance.

The Vanitie and Defiance are now at City Island. The Defiance has been dismantled and will be taken out of the water to-day for a general overhauling. It is necessary to haul out a wooden vessel much nore frequently than a vessel much normal necessary to have no vessel much necessary to have not not necessary to have necessary to have not necessary to have necessary sel much more frequently than a vessel with a bronze hull, but when she is launched again later in the week her un-dunched again later in the week her underbody will be as smooth as glass.

The bowsprit is to be removed and the rigging rearranged. Designer Owen has gone to Bath to get the necessary natings and rush them to City Island. Since the yacht left the builder's yard her weights aloft have been much reduced. According to Capt. Howell the reduction has been 4.700 pounds and with her new rig he thinks the yacht will be faster and able to give a good account of herself against the Resolute and Vanitie

In speaking of the one race in which the Defiance started Capt. Howell said: "When we had to withdraw with the "When we had to withdraw with the Defiance the yacht was doing very well. Mr. Pynchon had given the wheel to me because of my familiarity with the local conditions and I took the Defiance in toward the land to take advantage of the wind drawing off the New Jersey coast and to catch the tide which was setting down the coast. The Defiance was footing very fast and our plans worked well until the bobstay slacked up and let all the sail pian sag. At the time we withdrew we were sailing with started sheets, while the other yachts were still beating to windward. Apparently they had a big lead but we could have overcome that very soon."

very soon."
G. M. Pynchon, E. Walter Clark and Designer Owen had a long conference about the yacht, and it was agreed that the sail plan should be changed. Owen always wished to have the yacht rigged as were the Dorellos, his best two yachts, and now his scheme is to be tried out. The sails of the Defiance have been sent to Wilson's loft at Boston to be is expected that the Defiance will be is expected that the Denance will be under sail on Saturday. This will give her three days for tuning up before the next race, which is scheduled for a week from to-day.

The Vanitie may haul out for cleaning after the Defance is launched, but that is uncertain at present. Some slight is uncertain at present. Some slight changes are to be made in the leads of the sheets, and some small details pointed out by Designer Willam Gardner are to be attended to. The yacht's sails are all being recut by Ratsey, and in her next race she will have a much better fitting wit of capyes than she has yet spread.

Four races are scheduled for the three yachts next week. On Tuesday they will race under the auspices of the Indian Harbor Yacht Club, starting from off Great Captain's Island. On Thursday, Great Captain's Island. On Thursday June 25, they will take part in the an nual regatta of the New York Yacht Club starting off Glen Cove, and on Friday and Saturday, June 26 and 27, they will sail under the management of the Seawanhaka Corinthian Yacht Club, starting off

Breaks Rib in First Round

Neither of the main bouts went far at the Olympic A. C. last night. In the final event Fred McKay threw Bob Williams against a post in the first round. Williams could not get up again and it was found that one of his ribs was broken. The crowd criticised McKay for his rough

In the semi-windup between George Rodel and Sailor White the referee stopped the bout in the sixth round. At the time the Sailor was sitting on the ower rope and manifesting little inclination to go on with the battle.

Double Headrig on Resolute.

Bristol, R. I., June 15.—The Resolute was lowered from the Marine Railway into the water to-day. Her underbody has been burnished and she now carries the double headrig and is just as she was when first under sail. The mast was removed from the forward to the after step in less than an hour. Owing to the change in the rig the yacht trims by the head. This will be changed in the morn-ing and then the sails will be bent on. This change of rig will reduce the time allowance from the Vanitie to about one
